Man convicted of daughter's death

DETROIT -- Carlos Fanning was convicted Friday of second- degree murder for beating his five-month-old daughter to death in March.

Doctors testified that the blows that shattered Jenine Jefferson's skull had the impact of a car crash or a head-first fall from a second-story window.

Fanning, 24, will be sentenced Oct. 13 in Recorder's Court. He faces up to life in prison. In 1977, he was sentenced to probation for cruelty to animals.
