Suspect in double shooting arrested

James Morgan III, the man Detroit police have sought for about a week in a double slaying on the city's east side, was arrested Sunday.

Morgan, who also goes by the name Lakari Berry, was picked up at 6 a.m. at a motel in St. Clair Shores by members of Detroit's Fugitive Apprehension Service Team, police said.

He's accused in the June 21 shooting deaths of 35-year-old Clarence Cherry and 18-year-old Karisa Rice at an apartment at Cadieux and Gravier.

The Wayne County Prosecutor's Office authorized charges against Morgan.

Morgan, a parole absconder, faces charges that include two counts of first-degree murder, attempted murder, being a felon in possession of a firearm and being a habitual offender.
