Cocaine traffickers get 30 years

The leaders of a large-scale cocaine trafficking ring known as the Black Mafia Family were sentenced to 30 years in prison in federal court in Detroit on Friday.

Brothers Terry Flenory, 38, of Los Angeles and Demetrius Flenory, 40, of Atlanta were sentenced by U.S. District Judge Avern Cohn.

The brothers, formerly of southwest Detroit, pleaded guilty to operating a continuing criminal enterprise involving high volume distribution of cocaine throughout the United States from 1990 through 2005.

About 65 people were indicted in the case. Most pleaded guilty and half have been sentenced, the U.S. Attorney's Office said.
