Tarajee Maynor won't get to see her babies buried.

Judge Bryan Levy denied the request today in 46th District Court in Southfield. But Levy will allow Maynor to be seen by a psychologist.

The 25-year-old University of Michigan-Dearborn student is on suicide watch at the Oakland County Jail, where she's being held without bond, her attorney Elbert Hatchett said Wednesday.

Maynor 's charged with two counts of first degree felony murder and faces mandatory life in prison if convicted.

Assistant Prosecutor Marc Barron said a reasonable person would know that leaving the children in a car on a hot day would be harmful.

``You wouldn't leave a gallon of milk in a car for a half an hour," Barron said. ``You surely wouldn't leave a child."

Maynor 's children -- 3-year-old Adonnis and 10-month-old Acacia -- died Friday after their mom left them in the car for hours on a sweltering day so she could get her hair done at a Southfield hair salon.

Maynor simply didn't know that would kill them, Hatchett said.

``She never thought in her wildest thoughts that her children would die as a consequence of heat in her absence," Hatchett said.

``Being a college student is one thing and having the kind of wisdom and experience that would give you the knowledge that this is a dangerous situation is quite another. You don't learn that in college."

A preliminary exam is scheduled for July 10 at 46th District Court.

Funeral arrangements aren't clear. The family, which originally had scheduled visitation for Friday, is now requesting a private viewing and is not releasing details, according James Cole Home for Funerals in Detroit.
