

ON THIS DAY IN DETROIT

Detroit Free Press (MI) - Tuesday, August 3, 2004

In 1976, Mayor Coleman Young ordered police to enforce the city's curfew in an effort to quell gang activity. With such names as the Coney Oneys, Errol Flynn's and B.K.s (Black Killers), gangs of youths terrorized parts of the city throughout the summer. On Aug. 15, gangs disrupted a concert at Cobo Arena by the Average White Band with beatings, robberies and rapes.
